

FLEMING & CLARK

the well-known shoe firm on Main street, is displaying a line of shoes this week that is certainly worth the attention of the women of the town.

The shoes on display are the Red Cross Shoes for women. And the shoes are remarkable in two ways, first for their beauty and style, and then for ease and comfort.

The shoes are made in all the up-to-date shapes, but all have a flexible sole that bends with the foot. Unlike the ordinary shoe which has a sole that rubs and chafes the feet, the new shoes are so comfortable that women can walk long distances in them without suffering for it.

The new Red Cross models are remarkable for the short effect they give the foot.

BJORNSTJERNE BJORNSON.

Famous Norwegian Poet and Author Who Died in Paris.

BJORNSON IS DEAD

Norway's Great Scholar Passes Away
After Long Illness.

Paris, April 27.—Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the poet-novelist, known as "Norway's Uncrowned King," died after an illness of several months' duration. The cause of death was arteriosclerosis. Taken ill in the fall of 1909, his suffering gradually sapped away his vitality, great as it was, and his death was momentarily expected. He was seventy-eight years of age.

The career of this great poet and novelist is regarded as having influenced Norway more powerfully than that of his friend and associate, Ibsen.

To say that Bjornson was only a poet-novelist would be a mistake. He was a newspaper editor and contributor, theatrical director and playwright, political agitator and leader all at the same time, and in bewildering alternation.

Among the writings in which he will be best remembered are: "Synnove Solbakken," "Arne," "A Happy Boy," and such plays as "The Editor," "The New System" and "The King." Two of his greatest novels are "The House of Kurts" and "In God's Ways." One of his patriotic poems, "Yes, We Love the Land that Bore Us," took such hold on the people that it became the national hymn.

Prof. E. M. Terry left last Friday for his home near Pamplin. He will be greatly missed by his many friends.

Miss Christine Bradshaw is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. B. Farley, in Roanoke.

Mr. Joe Jenkins and daughter, of Crewe, spent a few days last week with his sisters, Mrs. N. D., and Mrs. J. S. Bradshaw.

Mrs. J. A. Young has returned home, after spending some time with sister in Appomattox county.

Miss Lullie Clark spent several days recently in the home of Mr. S. H. Bondurant.

Miss Eulalia Bradshaw visited Mrs. J. Y. Phillips in Farmville last Monday.

Mrs. Bass, of Richmond, is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Carter.

Mr. Cephas Wilson returned last Monday after having worked several days in Farmville.

Mrs. Sue Williamson, of Nottoway county, visited her mother a few days last week.

The High School had its commencement the 18th. It was indeed a delightful occasion, and the interest maintained during the entire program. The exercises were opened with prayer by Dr. W. J. Shipman. Then came the chorus by the High School, Miss Jane Alley presiding at the piano. A very pleasant feature of the evening was a play, "The High School Bum." Mr. Thomas was then introduced by Prof. Terry, the principal of the school, who made an exceedingly interesting and impressive address. He was followed by Mr. Atkinson, the county Superintendent, who made a very practical address, and congratulated the school on having the first graduates of any High School in the county. The graduating class consisted of Misses Bessie Mottley, Eulalia Bradshaw, Maud Bradshaw, Helen Vaughan and Mr. Sam Bondurant. Prof. Terry, in a very graceful manner, conferred the diplomas, and then made a short, but excellent address. The exercises closed with a chorus by the High School.

From High Bridge.

April 26.—Our entertainment at Stoddert School was well attended, and proved quite a success in every way.

Misses Ruth and Irvin Blanton, of Farmville, visited the Misses Ligon while they were at home Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. C. M. Smith is well enough to be out again.

Mrs. Eliza Blanton is at home again, after spending the winter in Richmond with her son, Dr. Clary Blanton.

Mr. Linwood Baldwin and wife of Farmville, visited Mr. and Mrs. Swoope Sunday.

From Stoddert.

April 26.—Mr. Mettner Crute's new residence is nearing completion. Mr. Lewis Crawley has painted his, Mr. Henry Walthall has finished his and Mr. A. L. Agee's will soon be finished. All of these add much to the improvement of the neighborhood.

Mrs. Eliza Blanton is visiting her son, Mr. J. Platt Blanton, and was welcomed by a host of friends Sunday at Brown's Church.

On Sunday afternoon Stoddert was brightened by some of Farmville's most attractive young ladies, Misses Carrie Kyle and Hattie Bugg with Messrs. Frank Blanton and Archer Wade, also Mr. Linwood Baldwin and wife.

The scarcity of tobacco plants caused nearly a panic here, many of the farmers burning their beds over, but since the rain all seem cheerful, as the plants are coming up, and while the planting will be late it is estimated that the usual average will be in cultivation.

Notice.

If not previously sold privately I will sell at public auction on May 2nd, at five P. M., one lot 65 X 150 feet, located near the stand pipe and five lots known as Riverside Park.
